

The Parent Organisations Meeting at the end of January marked the start of the new EFCNI year. Filled with workshops and plenty of activities for networking and exchange, like the World Café discussion event, we were inspired by the talks of our speakers. By sharing their expertise and practice, e.g. on creating a paid position in a national parent organisation in Bulgaria, they encouraged others to make an impact in their own countries. Furthermore, 2018 is a special year for us. Ten years ago, EFCNI was born. What started as an action by two affected parents and a neonatologist, has turned into a global network for newborn health. Let us celebrate and dedicate our 10th anniversary to everyone who made this possible. Thank you for your strong support and trust in EFCNI and our work.

Your EFCNI team

New composition of the EFCNI Trustee Board

EFCNI is delighted to announce the following changes in the foundation's Trustee Board: Professor Luc Zimmermann from the Netherlands joined EFCNI as new member. He has been accompanying and supporting the foundation for about a decade and in his new role, he will work even closer with EFCNI. Professor Hercília Guimarães from Portugal became Honorary Member of the Trustee Board. In her role, she will continue supporting and advising EFCNI and the Trustee Board with her invaluable expertise.

We warmly thank the Trustee Board for their commitment and continuous support and are looking forward to our common work.

14th Parent Organisations Meeting

As a time-honoured tradition, January was that time of year again where EFCNI hosted its by now 14th Parent Organisations Meeting (POM) in Freising, Germany. About 80 participants from Europe, Africa, Canada, and North America, in total from more than 30 countries, gathered to discuss preterm health topics, to share knowledge and experiences, and to motivate each other.

RECAP preterm consortium meeting in Frankfurt, Germany

Since the first 12 months of the EU-funded project Research on European Children and Adults born Preterm (RECAP preterm) are over, the consortium consisting of about 60 professionals from diverse areas met to wrap up the first working year. Currently all milestones and deliverables are on track. EFCNI and our project partner from the University of Marburg, Professor Rolf F. Maier, shared their dissemination plans for 2018 based on the lessons learned in the project's first year.

Photo contest 1 in 10

On the occasion of World Prematurity Day 2017, the Romanian parent organisation and partner of EFCNI, Unu si Unu held a photo contest. The theme was adapted by the Socks for Life slogan One baby in 10 is born premature and participants were called to submit photos that illustrate the concept One in ten. Our Chairwoman Silke Mader was a proud member of the jury and we are very delighted to introduce the winning photo: Monica Alina, mother of a preterm boy chose seeds to illustrate the contest's theme. Congratulations!

Extension of maternal leave in Brazil

The Brazilian government has decided to double the length of paid maternity leave for mothers of preterm infants. Our partnering parent organisation Prematuridade significantly influenced the legislative procedure by creating a task force composed of politicians from different parties to join forces to improve the legal situation.

Breast milk for preterms: dissertation studied maternal experiences

For her dissertation Breast Milk for Preterm Infants, Riikka Ikonen from the University of Tampere, Finland, interviewed mothers about their experiences in milk expressing, practices, and coping strategies. Our Finnish partnering parent organisation Kevyt contributed to the research by sharing the questionnaire with their network and thus recruiting participants.

Short films on Butterfly Project

Last year in September, our newsletter included an article about the Butterfly Guidelines. A wonderful project run by the network around neonatalresearch.net which provides guidance for health professionals dealing with bereaved parents who have lost a twin baby. Neonatal Research has now produced films with affected parents who share their experiences. The films are available on neonatalbutterflyproject.org. Please register (for free) if you wish to have access to the short films and parent stories. If you would like to learn more about the butterfly project, please visit the website.

Share your experience of finding a midwife

After reports of overcrowded delivery rooms, difficulties in finding a midwife for childbirth and childbed care at home, especially in major cities, the German prevention and care programme BabyCare decided to find out how widespread this situation is in Germany. What are your personal experiences of finding a midwife? Help us gain an overview in order to take action. If you are pregnant or if you have given birth to a child after January 2015, we would like to hear from you in a short survey. Please note that the survey is only available in German. ## 11 months - 11 topics: Data collection and documentation

February marks the start of our monthly calendar 11 months - 11 topics with Data collection and documentation being the first topic. This month you will learn about evidence-based research outcomes, the use of big data in neonatal care and their effects on medical practises and care procedures. To stay updated, follow us on social media.

- Topic announcement \(Facebook\)
- Standard topics of Data collection and documentation \(Facebook\)
- Developing standards on Data collection and documentation \(website of European Standards of Care for Newborn Health project\)

Lighthouse projects: Data collection and documentation

As part of 11 months – 11 topics, we would also like to introduce you to our brand new concept of lighthouse projects. Each month you will get to know one or more lighthouse projects. These are projects realised by members of our network or others active in neonatal care which we would like to share with you. Please regard them as a source of inspiration, a motivator or a role model for your own organisation or your individual ideas.

EMA recommends suspending of hydroxyethyl-starch

EMA's Pharmacovigilance Risk Assessment Committee (PRAC) recommends the suspension of the marketing authorisations for hydroxyethyl-starch (HES) solutions for infusion across the European Union. These products are used as plasma volume replacement following acute blood loss, where treatment with alternative products is not considered to be sufficient.
